Set in 1930s St Louis, The Glass Menagerie is a memory play that examines impossible family relationships, born of abandonment, and viewed through the shifting prism of time, distance, and lost hopes. This masterwork of the American theater is an intimate exploration of one family's heartfelt struggles.

His production of the classic comedy, You Can't Take It with You was hailed by The Star-Ledger as a "smashing success" and the "best revival of the 2004-2005 New Jersey theatrical season." His other major plays include Summer and Smoke, Camino Real, Sweet Bird of Youth, Not About Nightingales, and The Night of the Iguana.

Original music for The Glass Menagerie has been composed and orchestrated by Robert Waldman. A protégé of Frank Loesser, Waldman's Broadway credits include The Robber Bridegroom – for which he was nominated for a Drama Desk Award for Outstanding Music, the Tony Award-winning production of Alfred Uhry's Last Night at Ballyhoo, Here's Where I Belong, and Voices in the Dark. Productions at Lincoln Center include Third, The Rivals, Dinner at Eight, 10 Unknowns, Ivanov, A Fair Country, The Heiress, and Abe Lincoln in Illinois.
